

ABSTRACT

A computer mouse having a housing with a bottom surface which rests upon a horizontal operating surface. A tracking
5 device is positioned in the housing for generating pointer control data. A fragrance emitting means is contained within the housing of the computer mouse and is in communication with the tracking device. When the computer mouse is slid upon the operating surface, the fragrance particles housed
10 within the computer mouse are dispersed into the surrounding air.